GUY L. THURSTON

Born in Errol, N. H., Feb. 9, 1865
Died in Bethel, June 1, 1952

On hearing the news that our friend and neighbor, Guy L. Thurston, was done with earthly living, we were shocked and saddened. His going is a loss to hundreds of friends and relatives and townspeople.

To the last day of his life he was keen and active and smiling. Our second thought is gratitude that this fine citizen and man was spared the ordeal of feebleness or inactivity or of growing old. His eighty-seven years rested lightly on his stalwart shoulders and his heart was young. To him was granted the blessing of a quiet exit at the end of a long and successful and useful life.

Mr Thurston, or G. L. as he was called by young and old, was a logging contractor and lumberman in his early years.

He kept a hardware store in Bethel, served the town as road commissioner several years and as post master for two terms. He was a 32nd degree Mason and a member of allied orders. In civic affairs he was active and in our children and youth and schools he was interested.

For twenty years G. L. has been the efficient superintendent of Bethel Inn grounds and gardens and woods. His familiar figure striding over the scenic and well-kept premises, with a hearty word of praise or appreciation for each worker will be missed. With his wife, Betty Burns Thurston, he has had pride and pleasure in their lovely gardens and happy home at the head of Broad Street.

Mr Thurston is survived by his wife, a daughter, Mrs Bertha Chalk of Errol, N. H., a son, Guy L. Jr. of Stillwater, Maine, six grandchildren, two great grandchildren and many nieces and nephews.

Funeral services were held at West Parish Congregational Church and burial was in Riverside Cemetery beside a son, Roy, who died many years ago.

ALFRED MASON

Alfred Claire Mason died suddenly after a short illness at his home in South Bethel, Sunday afternoon.

He was born at North Paris, May 6, 1906, the son of Ernest C. and Elta Jacobs Mason, and was a woods worker by trade.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs Bernice Tibbets Mason; five sons, Ernest, Richard, Gary and twins, Albert and Delbert; five daughters, the Misses Janet, Eleanor, Shirley, Virginia, Patricia; a brother, Charles; and a sister, Mrs Agnes Walker, all of Bethel.

Funeral services were held from the Greenleaf funeral home Tuesday at 2 o'clock. Rev. David Hickland officiated.

SUNSET REBEKAH LODGE

Sunset Rebekah Lodge, No. 64, entertained Jackalena Pearce, Warden of the Assembly at their regular meeting Monday evening. Other guests were Past Pres. Melissa Brackett, Pres. Martha Bates and Marshal Ida Chapman of Dist. No. 7. Alfaretta Edwards who was the first Noble Grand of Starlight Lodge, No. 83, Fort Fairfield, was a guest. Incidentally Starlight is the Warden's home lodge. Guests were also present from Piny Lodge, Jefferson, N. H. The Rebekah degree was exemplified. The Warden pleasingly complimented the degree officers also the drill team of which Bertha M. Mills, P.M.G., was mistress and which was marshalled by Norma Jodrey, P.M.G. A delicious banquet was served in the dining room at 6:30.

Mrs Dana Jordan arrived home today after visiting relatives in Vermont.

Larry Tibbets of Berlin, N. H., spent the holiday and week end with his grandparents, Dr and Mrs R. H. Tibbets.

Barbara Eldredge, of Portland, visited her brother, Vernon Eldredge Jr., at the home of Mrs Gladys Dean during the holiday week end.

Sunday Rains Damage Crops and Roads

Heavy rainfall Sunday night caused heavy damage to roads and brought the rivers to the highest point of the season. Planted intervals were under water for some time as the flood waters went down slowly and many cattle pastured on low lands were hurriedly removed for safety.

Locally the greatest damage occurred in the highway at Freeman Merrill's, East Bethel, where his driveway and the Cummings Brook bridge were washed out leaving a large gully. There was a cave-in at Otter Brook bridge, East Bethel, but the road remained passable.

During the downpour Sunday night Mrs Eva Stanzilla of Rumford suffered a broken ankle when the car in which she was riding dropped into a washout in the water-covered road near Wilbur Davis' home on West Bethel Flat. Another passenger, Mrs Jason Smith of Bethel, was badly shaken up and bruised.

A car driven by Glenwood Lane of Locke Mills went into the Cummings Brook washout at East Bethel Tuesday night, but he escaped injury.

GRADE SCHOOL MUSIC GROUPS TO PRESENT CONCERT JUNE 9

On Monday evening, June 9, at 8 o'clock, in the William Bingham Gymnasium, the grade school music groups of Bethel will present their first annual spring concert.

Participating in the program will be the two grade school orchestras, band, glee club, the Methodist Church Junior Choir, and several soloists and ensemble groups.

This concert is being given for the purpose of bringing the music program of the Bethel schools to the public and to raise money for the continuation and development of this program.

Tickets are now being sold by the pupils of grades 4-8.

NO SPRAYING

The Park Commissioners have been informed this week by the Linnell Tree Surgery people that there will be no spraying of trees in Bethel Village this year.

The reason for this is that the Fryeburg pilot has sold his spraying plane and gone out of business. The only other spraying plane anywhere near here is down on the coast.

The tree surgeons have assured the commissioners that the gypsy moth condition, which was the original reason for spraying the trees, is completely cleared up in this area. The spraying each year did afford some comfort from mosquitoes and black fly pests, but will have to be dispensed with this year.

COL. KEY NAMED PRESIDENT

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH
About 7,500 Christian Scientists from throughout the world heard the Directors' special message at the annual meeting of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientists, in Boston Monday.

The Directors said that human ingenuity alone will never solve mankind's deepest problems. But they added that the means for right adjustment are spiritual and are immediately available. "Not numbers nor human might but truth—spiritual understanding—is the power that will mold the world's destiny," they declared.

Named President of the Mother Church for the coming year was Lt. Col. Robert Ellis Key of London, England, Associate Editor of the Christian Science religious periodicals. He has been active in the religion for more than 40 years, including service as practitioner, lecturer and authorized teacher.

"The keynote of this century is not chaos but Christ," Colonel Key told the huge crowd. "War and destruction have been associated with the first half of the twentieth century, but progress and spiritualization will mark the succeeding years."

"The old materialism must be replaced by a spiritual concept of creation," he added.

Mrs. Lora C. Stanton, retiring President, said there is "growing recognition that spiritual enlightenment, and spiritual enlightenment alone, will blot out the materialism which is the source of all confusion and of mankind's multiplied problems."

Relief totalling some $200,000 was voluntarily contributed by Christian Scientists to aid sufferers in the Kansas-Missouri Valley flood, Roy Garrett Watson, Treasurer of the Mother Church, announced.

In another field, the Christian Science Camp Welfare department disclosed that more than 360 Camp Welfare Workers were ministering to hospitalized veterans and members of the armed forces. In addition, 13 Christian Science chaplains—three of them in Korea—were on active duty with troops.

LT. COL. ROBERT ELLIS KEY

Nationally, there were approximately 37,600 deaths from motor-vehicle accidents in 1951, a seven per cent increase from 1950. In Maine there were 140 motor-vehicle fatalities, an eight per cent decrease from 1950.

The Little Foxes

THE fox, which has always been noted for its cunning and craftiness, too often has its counterpart in human experience.

In one of her addresses published in "The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany" Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, refers to a well-known passage in the Scriptures and admonishes (p. 123), "Seeing that we have to attain to the ministry of righteousness in all things, we must not overlook small things in goodness or in badness, for 'trifles make perfect,' and 'the little foxes . . . spoil the vines.'"

Right thinking is our bulwark of defence, and prevents us from indulging in wrong motives and acts. Our standard of living is high when we insist on Christliness in all that we say and do. The Bible tells us (Ecclesiastes 7:20), "God hath made man upright; but they have sought out many inventions."

Christ Jesus, referring to Herod and the threat of violence mentioned by the Pharisees, said (Luke 13:32), "Go ye, and tell that fox, Behold, I cast out devils, and I do cures to day and to morrow, and the third day I shall be perfected." He was not to be intimidated or hindered in his work.

At another time Jesus was asked if it was lawful to pay tribute to Caesar. He had taught the people that as God's image and likeness man is not dominated by mortal

Jaws and limitations, but is subject only to the law of God. His pure consciousness quickly detected, however, the effort of the questioners to trap him, and he asked to be shown a Roman coin. He pointed out that the coin bore Caesar's image and superscription, and said (Matthew 22:21), "Render therefore unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's; and unto God the things that are God's." Those who heard him knew that spiritual wisdom, his right understanding of God and man, had inspired his answer and protected him from the wiles of his enemies.

Any suggestion of motive or conduct which is not according to Principle but which we might be tempted to dismiss as insignificant because "others are doing it too," is a little fox nibbling at the vine of spiritual progress. The subtle temptations to disregard or evade the moral laws of honesty and integrity should be quickly dismissed on this basis.

If we weaken our ability to gravitate Spiritward, we forfeit the only weapon we have with which to overcome false mortal concepts. Human laws may sometimes be unjust, but the divine law is a law of adjustment which operates in human consciousness to correct any discordant condition or situation. It rules out human dishonesty by demonstrating the ever-presence of spiritual integrity. . . . The Christian Science Monitor.

400 NEW FEDERAL JOBS

FILLED EACH DAY

A constant reaching out by Uncle Sam into more and more fields of public activity is given by the Maine State Chamber of Commerce as a principal reason for the rapid increase in the Federal Government's payroll.

As an illustration, the State Chamber said, "Twenty years ago when the Government in Washington was composed of some 450 departments, bureaus and other units, it had a total of 663,800 civilian employees. But the most recent official count shows there are now more than 2,000 governmental units and as late as February 28 there were 2,531,000 Federal civilian workers on the payroll. New Federal jobs are being filled at the rate of more than 400 a day."

In Maine alone, the latest Civil Service figures show 16,881 Federal employees, the Chamber added.

"The State Chamber explained that every new spending program passed by Congress calls for the creation of a new Federal agency to administer it. Once created, an agency tends to grow. The State Department's foreign information program set up in 1948, had 2,837 in its first year of operation. Today it has 7,833 employees and it has requested funds to employ 11,250 next year."

In his budget message in January the President asked Congress to approve numerous new spending programs. Each would require a new batch of employees. One of them, the proposed $200,000,000 Federal school aid program would.

Professor Sees Early Use Of Atomic Energy for Power

Prototypes of atomic ship propulsion and developmental power producing piles will undoubtedly be operating within three to five years, Dr. Harold E. Hoelscher, University of Cincinnati assistant professor of chemical engineering, told a high school audience in the campus Physics Building.

Dr. Hoelscher looked into the reasonably near future when private interest and industry would expand in the field of atomic energy to develop its "inevitable" use as a supplemental but not replacement motive power for airplanes, submarines, and power generation. He does not foresee that atomic energy will completely supplement other forms of energy even in the next 100 years.

Although development of "such gadgets as the atomic bomb" was accelerated by tremendous government expenditures, the US scientist warned that "not much can be done to compress the time scale in the development of the industrial power producing piles." He added, "The need for and importance of the atomic engineer will be paramount."

Dr. Hoelscher's discussion of "Atomic Energy in War and Peace" was the final of six lectures on the atom sponsored by the University for outstanding high school science students and their teachers.

It will be 20 to 40 years before much effect will be made on civilian power consumption by atomic energy, Dr. Hoelscher declared. During this time of evolutionary development, atomic energy will supplement and not supplant the conventional power generation methods, he believes.

If adopted, eventually require as many as 3,000 employees to conduct it, according to a competent witness before Congress.

The best way to reduce Uncle Sam's huge civilian payroll, the

The Importance of Mortgage Insurance to Home Owners

Safety Measure Against Income Stoppage

Adequate life insurance should be an important part of your insurance program for the protection of your home. Life insurance can be applied directly to your home under the heading of mortgage insurance, according to Small Homes Guide.

Mortgage insurance protects the family from loss of the home through income stoppage due to death in the family. The simplest way to cover this possibility is through an extra life insurance policy which is earmarked for payment of any remaining mortgage debt, should the insured die unexpectedly.

Life insurance plans written specifically as mortgage insurance have become popular and can be tailored to your own requirements. There are a number of different types of mortgage insurance policies, and we will describe several typical basic plans here.

Amortized Type Policy
One of the best plans is embodied in a policy that insures you for a certain number of years, then it reaches a cash value equal to the remainder of your mortgage, at which time the insurance policy matures. Your cash investment in the policy is then used to pay off the mortgage balance. This type of policy is the most expensive to carry when you are paying periodic premiums. Insurance payments may increase your mortgage annual payments by a third or more; but its overall cost at maturity when your mortgage has been liquidated, is almost insignificant or may be canceled entirely. At the same time you are fully insured for the full initial obligation of your mortgage for the entire time that you are making payments. Your death at any time during these years not only pays off the debt, but refunds to your family every cent that has been paid on the mortgage to that date.

A typical policy of this type on a 20-year $10,000 mortgage with the insured at age 35, costs approximately $23.00 a month. Cash value of the policy equals the mortgage debt in 15 years, at which time both policy and mortgage are canceled.

Because of the interest saved through prepayment, you will probably pay less, including the cost of insurance, than if you paid your mortgage off in the normal manner over the 20-year period.

A plan entailing less running expense for insurance during the mortgage payment years (but costing more in the long run than the previously outlined plan) is one which combines the cash-value type insurance with ordinary term insurance. The amount of term insurance coverage is reduced as the mortgage reduces. Term insurance is the type which offers protection only in case of death, does not return any cash to the insured when the policy is terminated.

This second type of mortgage insurance package, as does the first, has a cash value at any time but, as insurance is concerned, covers only the outstanding mortgage debt. In the event of the insured's death, the insurance cancels the mortgage, but there is no refund to the family. However, with the policy having a cash value, the point is eventually reached where this equals the outstanding mortgage, so that additional mortgage payments are not necessary. It takes longer to reach this point than with the previously outlined policy, but the net cost of this type of insurance over the full mortgage term is still very low.

A typical policy in this category on the same 20-year $10,000 mortgage previously given as an example, calls for a monthly premium of approximately $18 for the first 10 years of the policy, reduces to $12 for the next 10 years, and allows the policy to run full 20 years, you have paid about $600 more for the insurance coverage than remains to you as cash value. This is not as good a long range bargain as the first policy described, but the monthly payment burden also has been appreciably less.

Least Expensive Plan
Least expensive insurance plan to carry, but costing most in the overall life of the insured, is straight term insurance applied to the mortgage period.

A typical policy of this type applied to the same 20-year $10,000 mortgage would cost only about $5 a month. Total 20-year cost comes to over $1,200, with no cash value to refund.

It is usually possible to obtain with any of the above policies a disability waiver-of-premium clause. This means that should the insured be disabled through sickness or accident, premiums are automatically paid as long as the condition prevails. Cash and dividend values continue to increase just as though premiums had been paid by the insured person.

EASY DOES IT

IT'S TRUE that vegetables have generous amounts of vitamins and minerals in them, but unfortunately it's also true that appealing amounts of these can be destroyed by poor preparation and handling. Check yourself on some of the following points to make certain you're getting the most from vegetables.

Bruising causes a rapid loss of vitamins. It's best not to handle vegetables any more than absolutely necessary. Be quick, be gentle. The skin on vegetables is a protection of vitamin loss to a certain degree. When cut, vegetables lose vitamin content, being exposed to air. It's smart to cut or prepare the vegetables just before cooking or before minding to serve in a salad.

Valuable nutrients lie right underneath the skin of many vegetables like potatoes, carrots and other root vegetables. Pare thinly, or better still, scrape. Cook in jackets, if possible, too.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Coconut Apple Pie Candy

(Makes 2 dozen)

1/2 cup dried apricots
1/2 cup shredded coconut
1/2 teaspoon grated orange rind
1/2 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 tablespoon orange juice
Wash apricots, cover with boiling water, let stand 5 minutes; drain. Put apricots and coconut through food chopper. Add orange and lemon rinds and orange juice. Knead mixture until blended. If candy is dry, add additional orange juice to moisten. If too moist, work in a small amount of confectioners' sugar. Shape into 1-inch balls. Roll in granulated sugar, additional coconut or finely chopped walnut meats.

Soaking dissolves minerals and water-soluble vitamins. Keep the vegetables from standing in water. Wash quickly under a running spray of water.

You can start cooking frozen vegetables while they're still frozen. In fact, it's better to do this than thaw them first as vitamin C is lost rapidly during the thawing.

LET'S ROLL BACK THE YEARS AT COMMENCEMENT TIME

This is the day old school friends meet; no matter how remote they are. Across dividing miles of land both near and far, they come to walk again the old familiar lanes, and tread the grass-grown trails of memory.

Crossing the campus of the old Academy, on an evening recently, I had a feeling I would like to linger and sit on the steps, and live again in memory the four years spent there. So I rolled back the years, which seemed as yesterday, and I a freshman.

My thoughts reverted to the days when I was studying English and Latin, and on what a bridge. I honestly believe the struggle of its translation caused my first grey hairs to appear. I had the good fortune of having Prof. Merriman as a teacher, otherwise would have fallen very low in rank.

At that time I think the average attendance was 60 or 70 pupils. The tuition was $5 per term. Each year I was there a new principal came to the desk. They were Mr. Merriman, Mr. Simpson, Mr. Small and Mr. Flood. Each had two assistants. Prof. Simpson, an able lawyer, lives in Bangor. I met him last year. The others have passed on.

When I imagined myself coming back to a society held in the school once, a month if all went well, where we danced and had games, dimly lighted by dusty chimneyed kerosene lamps. I wonder if the old tin-pan sounding piano is still there!

The older more brilliant students gave us an evening's entertainment of a Lyceum show and then, when papers of current events, social events, and personal jokes were read. Usually a piano solo and a couple recitations completed the program.

In the winter time, with a few dumbbells and Indian clubs, an exhibition was sometimes given in Odeon Hall, later a tambourine and Greek costume showing by six girls. The spring term gave us promise of an afternoon after recess (if we studied botany) to search for wild flowers near Lucy Larcom's Lodge. A fall hike to Paradise Hill for beechnuts and in winter a toboggan slide in moonlight down Mill Hill—and we don't forget a half-day off to Bethel or Norway Fair!

These were about all our diversions—but happy days, causing some to smile perhaps, at the simplicity of the activities so long ago. Someone has said that a "beautiful memory is the most precious wealth one can possess"—and I have found this to be true. Indeed I am rich in happy memories of my teachers, of their patience and love, for as I look back they had their problems. Their brief stay of only one year tells the story.

We know they did the best they could with their limitations, and with what equipment was available. Our satisfaction is that many of the pupils trained under such limitations have become most respected and useful citizens, and after all, what a marvelous half-century we have experienced! A person like Rip Van Winkle, having slept only 20 years, would be puzzled at the changes about the school, as though he too had partaken too generously of some powerful sleeping potion.

Ethel Richardson Hastings and myself were the only graduates of the class of '97. She was always a sweet modest girl, and her untimely death was sad. The following year when Mr. Hanson came all the honors were heaped on Garry Brooks as he graduated alone.

What has been accomplished since Mr. Hanson came to the school needs no repetition, as he strove unceasingly. The townspeople as well as his students will never forget his spirited poise, his cordial handshake and the inspired expression which came into his face when he was deeply moved. Today,

"MAINE MEN" PLAYING FOR GOULD GRADUATION BALL

The Maine Men of the University of Maine, a dance band made up of students at the University, will play for the Gould Academy Graduation Ball at the William Bingham Gymnasium Saturday, June 7.

The band, which has been organized for three years, was started in the fall of 1949 by Bruno Callender, a freshman majoring in pre-theology. With 16 pieces and two vocalists, the group was the largest orchestra in the area, and played for school dances and proms in the surrounding towns, as well as for the University functions and fraternity parties.

Callender, who for many years had a large orchestra in Portland, organized the outfit around the center of five musicians, who played the small jobs. On larger jobs he was able to add to this group from his supply of reserve musicians. It is this original five-piece band which will play here Saturday evening.

In the fall of 1951 Callender transferred to Ohio Wesleyan College. The Maine Men was sold to Don Lord, who had played trumpet since the band's beginning. Don, who is a music major from Bethel, also doubles on the piano, as does Ken Ayres, another music major, who plays the trombone.

Aside from leading the Maine Men, Lord is vice-president of the Mu Alpha Epsilon honorary music society at the University, and president, student leader and drum major of the University of Maine Band. Lord is the first man in the history of the University to hold all three jobs at one time.

Other members of the band are: Jim Murtha, alto and soprano sax; Dick Stephens, drummer with the original band; and Les Nadeau, prize-winning trumpeter from Deering High School in Portland.

The students host Mr. Ireland to the highest pedestal, as he stands for the true principles of the school in its efforts, accomplishments and success.

And now it's late, but the stately elms stand like sentinels, and the gentle rustle of their leaves whisper to the counselor; after the good night chant has long been hushed, and each dormitory light has closed its eye, the counselor takes easy steps to verify the sweet breathing of her brood. She thinks of the bolsterous one, the thoughtful and the shy. The breeze blows softly—peace pervades and she too takes rest.

To old friends we meet at this commencement, we give one sweep of grateful thought, thanking them for all the joy of their companionship and love, on the miles that lie behind, and for the joy that shall not fall on all the miles that lie before.

Let's come back again, this year of all years, with hand clasps and with smiles; forget the long years in between, and the trials and tears by the way—for memories waken youth's old sweet song in our hearts at commencement day.

When the bell in the old school urgently peals, calling us in to dine, we will eat to our fill, and give as of yore, our toast to "Auld Lang Syne."

Winifred Hall Bartlett, G. A. '97
